GERMANY.

VIENNA, July 3, 1743.

A NEW Plan of Operations has been, it is ſaid, concerted for Italy, and Prince Lobkowitz is to go and put it into Execution. As ſoon as it appears that the French are actually engaged to aſſiſt the Spaniards in forcing a Paſſage thro' Piedmont, the Queen will aſſiſt the King of Sardinia with 12,000 Men, which are to be replaced by a like Number of Troops from Bavaria, who have Orders to hold themſelves ready to march through Tyrol into Italy.

Vienna, July 6. Prince Lobkowitz is preparing to ſet out for Italy, in order to take upon him the Command in Chief of her Majeſty's Forces in that Country; Count de Traun by reaſon of his great Age and Infirmity, having deſired Leave to retire. Count Burghauſen arrived here this Morning with Six and Twenty Standards taken at Straunau, where the Garriſon were conſtrained to ſurrender Priſoners of War

Neuburgh, July 9. The Queen of Hungary's Army is in full March for the Frontiers of France, after having been obliged to make a longer Stay than was intended at Rayn, on Account of the Bread firſt baked there not proving fit to eat; which obliged the Troops to wait, until they could have a Supply from the neighbouring Towns. The firſt Column march'd Yeſterday, about ſix in the Morning, the ſecond about one in the Afternoon, the third about two this Morning. The Artillery is with the ſecond Column, but the heavy Baggage ſtill continues at Rayn. Theſe Troops will make ſome forc'd Marches, in order, if poſſible, to reach the Rhine before the Marſhal Broglio and Noailles can repaſs it, and force them to a Battle This is, by far, the fineſt and moſt numerous Army the Houſe of Auſtria has had in the Empire theſe two Centuries paſt. It conſiſts of 22 Regiments of Foot, and 22 of Horſe. Many of the former are compoſed of three, and none fall ſhort of 2000 Men. The Regiments of Horſe are not only compleat, but moſt of them have Supernumeraries, and Abundance of Officers who are Volunteers. The Soldiers are perfectly well cloathed, the Train of Artillery very fine, and, with reſpect to Ammunition, Pontons, and other Inſtruments of War, they are as well provided as any Dutch Body of Troops ever were. The ſole Difficulty is, to find Subſiſtance for 60,000 Men, excluſive of Huſſars and irregular Troops, in a Country already eaten up; eſpecially conſidering that, through their unexpected March, Count Khevenhuller, the moſt provident General that ever commanded, has not had Time to cauſe proper Magazines to be erected, except in the Briſgow, where there are ſaid to be ſome very conſiderable. To obviate this Inconvenience it has been found neceſſary to demand of the Circle of Swabia, 300,000 Portions of Bread. The Prince of Lichtenſtein, formerly Ambaſſador at the Court of France, and Field Marſhal Count de Konigſegg, have been ſent to Augsburgh upon this Occaſion, with ſome Commiſſaries for Proviſions. Their Demand has been granted, tho' Proviſions and Forage are become exceſſively ſcarce and dear throughout the whole Circle of Swabia; the French having drawn prodigious Quantities from thence, in order to fill their Magazines of the Danube, where they afterwards deſtroy'd the far greateſt Part of them. This Day Prince Charles hath given a grand Entertainment at Dillengen, to all the General Officers in his Army.

Hanau, July 9. The King having appointed Sunday laſt for a general Thankſgiving to be performed with the Divine Service at the Head of the whole Army, for the Victory which his Majeſty's Troops obtained over the French the 27th of June, near Dettingen, and for impleting the Bleſſing of the Almighty upon the future Progreſs of his Arms, the ſame was perform'd throughout the whole Army with the higheſt Devotion and Decency; and about Six in the Evening his Majeſty, attended by his whole Court, went to the Army; which being drawn up in Two Lines, made three Diſcharges upon his coming to the Head of the Firſt. Then his Majeſty rode along the ſecond Line and returned to the Palace here about Eight in the Evening. General Brown arrived about Eight laſt Night from Prince Charles, with an Account that he is in full March, and has been ſo ſix Days, with Thirty Regiments of Foot, making Sixty Battalions of Six Hundred Men each, the Grenadiers included; Twenty-ſeven Regiments of Cuiraſſiers, making Seven Hundred Men each; eight Regiments of Huſſars, making Seven Hundred Men each; eight Regiments of Dragoons, making Seven Thouſand compleat; Three Hundred Croats; and fifteen Hundred Pandours. He marches in Two Columns, and will be upon the Neckar in ſeven Days from hence.

From the LONDON GAZETTE, Publiſh'd by Authority

Hanau, July 13. Yeſterday Morning at Break of Day the French Army broke up, and march'd in a very haſty manner from the Mayne. As the Auſtrian Huſſars are not yet arrived, ſome of our Independent Companies were ſent after them, and took ſome Baggage from them, and brought in the Prince of Craon's Son Priſoner, who lay wounded in a Village which they had abandon'd. Fifty ſeven Deſerters came in Yeſterday from the French Army, who ſay, that the Orders for their March was given on a ſudden, and that ſince the Battle there had been a vaſt Deſertion; that it was talk'd in the Army they was going to Worms, and that they were to take four Marches without ſtopping. We have certain Intelligence that they have continued marching all this Day, and they ſeem to point towards Oppenheim. By Letters of the 10th from Heidelberg we hear, that a good Body of Huſſars are in that Neighbourhood, and that the Elector Palatine has quitted his Reſidence at Manheim. We expect to hear from Prince Charles To-morrow, and reckon that he is within ſeven Marches of us this Day. Both the Armies having been victorious, are in the higheſt Spirits. His Majeſty is in perfect Health, after a ſlight Indiſpoſition of two Days, occaſion'd by the immenſe Fatigue he has gone through. The Duke of Cumberland's Fever has entirely left him, and his Royal Highneſs is out of all manner of Danger

Hanau, July 14. M. Noailles who decamped in the Night of the 12th from Offenbach, without Beat of Drum, after burning his Magazines, has taken the Route by Sprenglingen and Gerau towards Oppenheim. The Auſtrian Huſſars have carried off the Pontons the French had thrown over the Neckar, and our Huſſars have began to put Part of Alſace under Contribution; which has put the Country into the greater Conſternation, ſince this was a Viſit that no Body expected; and they apprehend from thence, that this Province will become ſuddenly the Seat of a moſt bloody War. In the mean Time, our Huſſars have made ſuch a prodigious Booty, that they have been pleaſed to beſtow, by Way of Bounty, on the Peaſants of Swabia, three Waggon loads of rich Baggage; and this, on the other Hand, has given theſe People ſuch a Notion of a Military Life, that no leſs than 600 of them have determined to leave their Families, and to go and pick up Effects at the Expence of the French.

Hanau,

Hanau * July 16. A Captain of Huſſars, with about 100 Men, being ſent to watch the Rear Guard of M. Broglio's Army, met with a Detachment of 300 French who were conducting the Baggage; and notwithſtanding the Inequality of the Numbers attack'd them: After an obſtinate Engagement the Captain was diſabled; upon which the Lieutenant (Kitſman to Prince Eſterhaſi, a Youth about twenty) took the Command, and fought on Foot with ſo much Bravery that he beat the Eſcorte, and carried off a great Part of the Baggage. — The Huſſars have ſeiz'd upon the Magazines belonging to the French upon the Neckar.

We have taken the important Poſt of Liechſi, with eight Battalions, four Engliſh, and four Hanoverian. The Engliſh are Duroure, Campbell, Bligh, and Pontenby's: The Earl of Albemarle and Brigadier Pontenby are with them. Lieutenant General Semmerfeldt commands the Whole; he has eight Pieces of Cannon: Brigadier Zaſtrow commands the Lunenburgh Brigade.

Manheim, July 12. The Army of M. Broglio is deſiling thro' our Neighbourhood for Alſace. The Reſerve has already repaſſed the Rhine, and the laſt Column arrived on Monday at Sintzheim. How much Haſte ſoever they may have made, they could not cut run the Auſtrian Huſſars, who have very frequently come up with them, and done them a great deal of Miſchief. Between Oebringen and Schwachtcall they carried off a great Number of their Waggons, and Abundance of Horſes, after having cut to Pieces three Companies of Grenadiers that guarded them. On the 9th they ſurprized and carried off the Bridge at Jaſſfeldt, and ſeveral Pieces of Cannon; on the 10th they fell in with the Baggage and Ammunition Waggons; the next Morning they ſeized the Magazine of Ammunition at Wimſen; beſides theſe they have gained other Advantages. The Auſtrian Army continues its March with all Diligence for the Rhine, while the French are no leſs diligent in their Endeavour to repaſs it, and get out of their Reach: which is ſaid to be the Subſtance of the laſt Orders ſent to M. Noailles.

Hanau July 17. We have certain Advice that the French Army, under the Command of Marſhal Broglio, paſs'd the Rhine on Friday laſt at Spire, and that the Army under Marſhal Noailles was to paſs the ſame River as this Day about Oppenheim and Worms.

Frankfort, July 17. The Auſtrian Huſſars have made themſelves Maſters of all the French Magazines in the Nieha. It is generally reported here, that the French Marſhals will aſſemble all their Forces behind the Rhine, in order to hinder the Allies from paſſing that River; which they will certainly attempt, as ſoon as they are joined by the Army of Prince Charles. His Britannick Majeſty has cauſed Notice to be given in all this Neighbourhood, to make all the Diſpatch they can with their Harveſt, that it may not ſuffer from the approaching March of his Troops, for which all the neceſſary Preparations are making with the greateſt Diligence.

Hanau, July 18. Laſt Tueſday in the Forenoon the French Cavalry began to paſs the Rhine at Rhineturcken; the baggage that they had for Safety ſent before, was conducted to Worms, and the whole Army is thought to have paſs'd that River Yeſterday Evening. Yeſterday at Noon the Flying Bridge that was at Oppenheim, was brought to Gerſheim, and from thence to be carried to Rhineturcken, in order to its being made Uſe of there. About the ſame Time there was left at Frghenheſſ, a French Detachment of 1000 Men and 200 Huſſars for a Rear-Guard. Yeſterday Morning, from Four to Six o'Clock, a Party of Hungarian Dragoons, Huſſars, and, as is reported, ſome Pandours, to the Number of 8 or 900 Men, came from Adenwald to Erlsbergh, and to Zwingenbergh, where the French had a Party of about 3000 Men to guard their Magazine, which the Hungarians attack'd, and oblig'd them to fly to the Wood which lies near Jegerſperg, and where they have lodg'd themſelves; but we no Account of what has happen'd ſince. The French have burnt their Magazine at Groſsheim, becauſe they could not carry it off. As to their Hay and Straw Magazine at Groſs Geran, they demanded 100 Waggons to remove it to Oppenheim, but could not get ſuch a Number; and the French Officers having ask'd a Certificate of their having left ſuch a Quantity behind, it was refuſed them, upon which they threaten'd to plunder the Inhabitants.

Hanau, July 19. This Moment Advice is arriv'd, that General Nadaſti coming up with a Part of M. Broglio's Army, had engaged them, and entirely defeated ſeven Companies of Grenadiers, and taken Priſoner every Man which compoſed three whole Squadrons of Horſe.

Hanau, July 20. Our Independant Companies purſuing M. Noailles's Army in their Retreat, and amongſt other Things, plundered them of 30,000 Portions of Bread. The General has entirely repaſſed the Rhine with his Army, and fixed his Head Quarters at Worms. The Auſtrian Huſſars to the Number of 3 or 4000, have extended themſelves on both Sides the Neckar, from Fort Louis as high as Worms, and have already ſeized on the Rhine ſeveral Boats laden with Forage and Proviſions, for the Army of M. Noailles. Theſe People, notwithſtanding what has been ſaid of them, obſerve a moſt exact Diſcipline, as do alſo the Pandours. The latter ſurrounded lately ſeveral Companies of French Grenadiers at Walldorff, to whom they twice offered Quarters; but they refuſing it, the Pandours attack'd them, and cut them all to Pieces. The allied Army remains exactly in the ſame Poſture it was, except that they have ſent a Detachment to occupy the Village of Coſtheim, about Half a League from Mentz. We have Proviſions and Forage in Abundance, and neceſſary Precautions have been taken, to prevent our feeling any Want of them for the future.

PRUSSIA.

Berlin, July 10. The King received, a few Days ago, a Courier diſpatch'd from his Britannick Majeſty, with the News of the important Victory gain'd on the 27th of laſt Month at Dettingen by the Arms of the Allies. His Majeſty reſolved upon this, to ſend a Perſon of the firſt Diſtinction to compliment the King of Great Britain thereon, to aſſure him of the great Satisfaction this News gave him, and, at the ſame Time, to make to his Majeſty certain Overtures, which are ſaid to be of the laſt Importance.
